Early Christianity: " The Apostolic Fathers " Edited by Paul F. Kisak

The “Apostolic Fathers” is a term used to describe a group of Early Christian writings produced in the late 1st century and the first half of the 2nd century. These writings, though popular in Early Christianity, were ultimately not part of the New Testament once it reached its final form. Many of the writings derive from the same time period and geographical location as other works of early Christian literature that did come to be part of the final form of the New Testament, and some of the writings found among the “Apostolic Fathers” seem to have been just as highly regarded as some of the writings (that remained) in the New Testament.
