This manual, Army Techniques Publication ATP 4-41 Army Field Feeding and Class I Operations December 2015, provides field food service doctrine through methods, techniques, and procedures for providing subsistence to Soldiers during the full spectrum of military operations. Because no two missions are the same, personnel must adapt the doctrine in this manual to fit the needs of the given situation and mission. The principle audience for ATP 4-41 is all members of the profession of arms. Commanders and staffs of Army headquarters serving as joint task force or multinational headquarters should also refer to applicable joint or multinational doctrine concerning the range of military operations and joint or multinational forces. Trainers and educators throughout the Army will also use this publication. ATP 4-41 applies to the Active Army, the Army National Guard /Army National Guard of the United States, and the United States Army Reserve unless otherwise stated. The Army has conducted many combat and stability operations that have greatly affected the way class I is provided to Soldiers. This manual incorporates these lessons learned and should be used to plan and conduct field food service and class I operations during field training exercises, operational deployments, and contingency operations. This manual, Army Techniques Publication ATP 4-41 Army Field Feeding and Class I Operations December 2015, replaces ATTP 4-41, Army Field Feeding and Class I Operations. ATP 4-41 contains three parts: Part One of this manual provides an in-depth overview of the Army field feeding system (AFFS), modular subsistence sustainment, personnel responsibilities, and class I supply planning considerations. Chapter 1 discusses the Army field feeding system as a total system that supports doctrine through flexibility in feeding methods. Chapter 2 discusses organizational and personnel responsibilities, the transformation of support, and sustainment operations and the development of the sustainment brigade as the Army's key logistical link to support the Soldier with class I. Chapter 3 provides guidance on class I supply planning for both field training exercises and operational deployments to an area of operations. Part Two of this manual discusses the Army family of rations and field kitchen equipment. Both areas continue to evolve based on current and future military operations. Chapter 4 provides an overview of distribution planning factors for the Army family of rations and menus used for training exercises, operational deployments, and contingency operations feeding.
