Joyce Meyer and Deborah Bedford

Christian fiction Novel

The Lincoln's nose struck cold water at full velocity. Metal sheered off. She tasted blood. Adrenaline shot through her, numbed her with needlelike precision. I'm in trouble. Her heart pounded faster than it had ever pounded before. When she tried to scream for help, nothing came. Fear clamped her throat, leaving her no voice. The constricted sound that escaped was something between a gasp and a reedy cry ...

Sarah's personal data assistant wafted in front of her hand. No more memos or alarms or schedules. Its screen had gone dead.

She couldn't reach the glove compartment no matter how hard she stretched or how long she tried.

She tried to kick herself free. Somewhere in the past moment, the X M channel had dissipated into silence.

One last time she tried to unfasten the seat belt on her own, holding her breath, bubbles escaping her mouth. The bubbles moved away from her face at an odd angle; she was losing her bearings fast.

I'm in trouble. Her last thought. I'm in trouble.

The icy river closed overhead, leaving no trace of where she'd been.

Sarah Harper is driven to achieve success no matter what the cost. She wants to do good and not hurt the people she loves -- especially her son, Mitchell, her husband, Joe, and her daughter, Kate -- but her desire to succeed in her career too often leaves little time for family.

One cold, rainy, autumn morning, all of that changes when Sarah's car plunges off a bridge and into a river. As rescuers search desperately for her body, Sarah's spirit is still very much alive. What she discovers on the other side transforms everything about Sarah's view of life -- past, present, and future. And the unsuspecting world around her will never be the same again.

Her life shattered in an instant ... But what if she had a chance to gain it all back?
