Magical Realism in West African Fiction (Routledge Research in Postcolonial Literatures) Brenda Cooper

This study contextualizes magical realism within current debates and theories of postcoloniality and examines the fiction of three of its West African pioneers: Syl Cheney-Coker of Sierra Leone, Ben Okri of Nigeria and Kojo Laing of Ghana. Brenda Cooper explores the distinct elements of the genre in a West African context, and in relation to:

- * a range of global expressions of magical realism, from the work of Gabriel Garcia Marquez to that of Salman Rushdie

- * wider contemporary trends in African writing, with particular attention to how the realism of authors such as Chinua Achebe and Wole Soyinka has been connected with nationalist agendas.

This is a fascinating and important work for all those working on African literature, magical realism, or postcoloniality.

You are consequently out of date, spending your free time by reading in this completely new era is common not a geek activity. So what these publications have than the others?

Linda White:

As a pupil exactly feel bored to reading. If their teacher questioned them to go to the library in order to make summary for some reserve, they are complained. Just tiny students that has reading's soul or real their leisure activity. They just do what the professor want, like asked to go to the library. They go to right now there but nothing reading significantly. Any students feel that examining is not important, boring as well as can't see colorful photographs on there. Yeah, it is to get complicated. Book is very important to suit your needs. As we know that on this age, many ways to get whatever you want. Likewise word says, ways to reach Chinese's country.
