Recipes and Wisdom: by Martha Markey Martha Markey

After completing Easy Money and Alaska's Homesteaders, I looked for another way to share my life with my family and friends, and found it in my recipe box and in a fat file folder full of tips on how to better ones life. The resulting book Recipes and Wisdom, brought the box and the folder into the twenty-first century to share as to legacy to future generations.

Recipes include instructions on making a Glowing Water Bottle, just right to entertain children at a birthday party; recipes for Fried Zucchini Flowers, Fortune Cookies, and Mincemeat; facts about old-fashioned Saltwater Taffy and plants like Horehound, Comfrey, and Carob.

The many tidbits of wisdom are salted randomly through this book, including one that encouraged me to become a writer, "Produce a thing and then account for it afterwards. All attempts to analyze it first only indicate its impossibility," Author unknown. And Evelyn Harvison making me a needle point picture saying "Dammit do it."

Also some that tickle my funny bone like. "Forgive your enemies. It messes up their heads." And Garrison Keillor's "We are not chips of wood drifting down the stream of time, we have oars."

I have also included quotes from Mark Twain, Andy Rooney, Sydney Smith, William Shakespeare, Charles J. Sykes, and many unknowns.
